

FMC Pocatello Operable Unit

More Public Comment Opportunities

EPA continues to seek your comments on proposed changes to the former record of decision for the FMC Operable Unit of the Eastern Michaud Flats Superfund Site. These changes are described in EPA's Proposed Plan for an Interim Amendment to the Record of Decision. In response to requests from the public, EPA has extended the comment period to December 2, 2011. EPA will also hold additional question and answer sessions which will include the opportunity for recorded oral comments.

The FMC Operable Unit includes a former phosphate ore processing plant, which began operating in 1949, and some surrounding properties owned by the FMC Corporation. The Eastern Michaud Flats Superfund Site, located 3 miles northwest of Pocatello, Idaho, contains the FMC Operable Unit. Most of the unit is also located within the borders of the Fort Hall Reservation.

The FMC Operable Unit currently has uncontained contaminants in the soil and groundwater that can negatively impact people's health and the environment. The soil contaminants include elemental phosphorus, toxic metals and radionuclides. The groundwater contaminants of concern are arsenic and orthophosphate. EPA is proposing to deal with these risks through a combination of capping, groundwater extraction and treatment, stormwater management, long-term monitoring, maintenance, and land use restrictions.
